

fig. 675: below (p. 379)
Large and imposing necklace (tazelagt) of a double row of silver discs engraved with nielloed spirals, separated by branch coral and tiny shells, and attached to colourful cords South-west Morocco, Sous Valley; early to mid 20th c.
 H (without cords) 38 cm, Diam. of silver discs 6 cm
 Silver, niello, coral, shells, red woollen cords

fig. 676: left (p. 379)
Wedding necklace of huge chunks of amber, two silver beads and dark pink silk tassels
 South-east Morocco, Ouarzazate: Berber people;
 mid 20th c. (many of the beads much older)
 H (without tassels) 34 cm; largest bead 7 x 3.3 cm
 Amber, silver, worn leather spacers, silk

fig. 677: right (p. 379)
Copal resin necklace worn by marriageable girls
 Morocco, High Atlas Mountains: Ait Atta Berber people;
 second half 20th c.
 H 54 cm, W 21 cm; largest beads 4.4 x 3.4 cm
 Copal resin and 2 silver beads, red felt spacers, brass buttons, wool

fig. 678: left (p. 379)
'Assemblage' necklace made by women of coral, amber and other components Morocco, Draa Valley: Berber people; mid 20th c.
 H (as shown) approx. 30.5 cm
 Coral, amber, ebony, silver, amethyst, amazonite, glass